A Durable Decking Solution

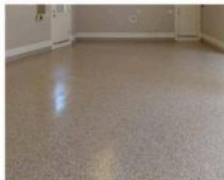

Here in the Lowcountry, we take our outdoor living spaces seriously—every precious, temperate moment is spent on porches and decks soaking up the scenic landscape of our backyards. The climate we love so much, however, presents a double-edged sword. Sea Island Builders seeks to offer a solution to such unfriendly elements. Their Silca Deck System is composed of travertine pavers that are placed on top of a special composite that allows water to pass through, meaning that more weather-resistant options, like tile and stone, can be used instead of wood. It's durable and impervious to fading and warping, not to mention extremely low-maintenance. The best part? Decking made of tile is cooler to the touch, which can save the soles of your feet in the height of summer.

Weather-Proof Your Garage

Humidity and flooding can be unfortunate aspects of Charleston's otherwise beautiful weather. The consistently moist air often damages wood and other materials over time, while flooding can result in a rash of near-instant destruction. One area of your home that is particularly susceptible to this kind of harm is the garage. Cars, tools, and other valuables are often stored in these overlooked spaces, and these items are vulnerable to the damp due to its typical lack of climate control. Luckily, Garage Experts can construct or remodel a garage specially designed to withstand our coastal climate. They apply an epoxy flooring, which dries quickly and is extremely durable to protect the surface of your garage floor, as well as resilient cabinet solutions that are designed to store items in an aesthetic and functional manner.
